Acknowledgments

This publication grows out of numerous efforts that gathered a feminist solidarity without which our work would have not been possible. We owe many debts to those who joined us in labors these past months, and those whose inspiration served as a guiding force for the publication.

We are infinitely grateful to our advisory board Angelika Arutyunova, Arianne Shahvisi, Ebtihal Mahadeen, Elisabeth Armstrong, Fatima Sadiqi, Islah Jad, Khoulood Mahdhaoui, Nadjé Al-Ali, Sahar Mandour, and Samar Habib, who embody qualities we try to promote in our publication. Thank you Arianne, Ebtihal, Khoulood, Lisa Nadjé, and Sahar for your invaluable talk in the panel on Feminist Production of Knowledge: Queering the Challenges and the Strategies in the MENA, for the instrumental advice you have given us, and much more. Thank you Lisa for your insightful comments and suggestions on drafts sent to you in a limited time. We are immensely grateful for the tireless dedication and exceptional talents of Nadjé. Thank you Arianne for your commitment to promoting Kohl and for organizing the talk at the University of Sussex. Thank you Sahar for facilitating internal meetings and for your immense multifaceted contributions to the journal.

An immense thank you goes to Sawsan Abdulrahim for reaching out to Kohl and volunteering your skills as an advisory editor for this issue.

We greatly appreciate the flawless translations provided by Leen Hashem, and that sustain Kohl's commitment to promoting Arabic as a language of knowledge production. Our gratitude goes to Jana Nakhil and Roua Seghaier for providing additional translations.

We thank those who answered our call to participate in the focus group behind the conversation published in our "Openings" section. It was an enriching experience to exchange ideas with all of you. So thank you Jana Nakhil for facilitating the focus group, and an immense thank you to Khalil, Serena, and L. who wish to remain anonymous. We value the trust that you have given us.

We have had a great time working with the fantastic writers/scholars that have provided material for this issue. So thank you Arianne Shahvisi, Jessika Khazrik, Kenza Yousfi, Lady Gya, Maisan Hamdan, Mariam Kirolos, Nadjé Al-Ali, Roua Seghaier, Siwar Masannat, and Susana Galán.

A special thank you goes to our wonderful peer-reviewers who have provided insightful feedback that was instrumental in shaping the final forms of the articles. We are infinitely grateful to Alaa Hijazi, Angie Abdelmonem, Deema Kaedbey, Dina Georgis, Isis Nusair, Katharine Halls, Lama Abu-Odeh, Leen Hashem,

Malek Abisaab, Marwan Kraidy, Maya El Helou, Mejdulene Shomali, Minoo Moallem, Mounira Soliman, Nadine Naber, Nicole Khoury, Rebecca Saab Saadeh, Roua Seghaier, Salma Shash, Sara Salem, Sarah Hamdan, Sawsan Abdulrahim, and Sofian Merabet. In particular, we would like to highlight the instrumental efforts of Elisabeth Armstrong and Rachel Kaplan; thank you for the critical feedback you have provided us with on a short notice. The publication would have not been possible without all of you, and we look forward to future cooperation.

An immense thank you goes to our wonderful web designer and social media advisor Chantal Partamian, who generously shared her expertise and skills that greatly contributed to our online presence and documentation efforts. Thank you Farah Jaafar for volunteering your time and talent and helping us with our video material.

We greatly appreciate the generous contributions of artists Salam Shokor and Tanja Van Deer, whose artwork is featured on the cover and homepage of this issue. We thank Tanja Van Deer, Saba Sadr, and Salwa Mansour for sharing their billboard intervention and entrusting Kohl with their Culture Jamming project.

We would like to thank Heinrich Böll Stiftung and their Middle East Office in Beirut for their constant financial backing since Kohl's early beginnings. In particular, we wish to thank Noor Baalbaki who has been handling all the communications with Kohl. We are grateful for the support of the International Women's Health Coalition (IWHC), whose financial contribution made our annual advisory meeting possible.

It is hardly possible to name all the people that have showed support, attended our events, shared our media, and got in touch through emails and personal encounters. Your support is heartwarming and much appreciated.

The Kohl Team,
Ghiwa Sayegh and Roua Seghaier
