It takes a village to raise a journal. And for the past months, we have been growing into a wonderful village of activists/academics/thinkers. We could not have done this without you!

To our advisory board Arianne Shahvisi, Ebtihal Mahadeen, Elizabeth Armstrong, Fatima Sadiqi, Islah Jad, Khoulood Mahdhaoui, Maissan Hassan, Nadjé Al-Ali, Sahar Mandour, and Samar Habib. Thank you for being so generous with your time and for all your invaluable input. Thank you, Lisa, for going the extra mile to comment on some of the papers, and for our Skype meetings which gave us so much positive energy. Big thanks to Nadjé for meeting with us during your short visit to Beirut and despite your hectic schedule. Arianne, you have been a consistent source of enthusiasm and support, and we will miss your presence in Beirut. Sahar, we have worked with you as a member of our advisory board, a writer and an editor, and we loved every part of it.

Much gratitude to our GSRC intern, Aya Adra, for her instrumental work with copy editing and translating. Kohl was very insistent on being available in Arabic, and for making this possible, we really appreciate translations provided by Karla Serhal, Mohannad Daba, Jana Nakhal, and Stephanie El-Haddad.

We are thankful for everyone who answered our invitation to meet in focus groups, who sat with us and shared their brilliant ideas for the journal. These meetings were exciting and inspiring, and we truly felt a sense of communal support, so thank you to Chantal Partamian, Diana Abou Abbas, Jean Said Makdisi, Leen Hashem, Lynn Darwich, Maya El Helou, Sirene Harb, and Zainab Nasser.

We have had the privilege of working with fantastic scholars/writers whose dedication and energy under the pressure of deadlines is inspiring: Anass Sadoun, Angie Abdelmonem, Arianne Shahvisi, Ghadir Shafie, Jana Nakhal, Ilham Hammadi, Sahar Mandour, Sarah Hamdan, Zena Meskaoui, and the anonymous activists of our Openings section (Sanaa H., Alissar, Ghenwa, Jo, Lynn, and Qid). We are so thankful that you would trust an unknown journal with your work!

We are so pleased and honored to have a great team of peer reviewers, whose insight and comments have made all the difference. So a huge thank you to Alaa Hijazi, Alanoud Alsharekh, Dina Georgis, Ebtihal Mahadeen, Elisabeth Armstrong, Katharine Halls, Khadija Rouggani, Leen Hashem, Lynn Darwich, Maya El Helou, Nancy Gallagher, Nicole Khoury, Salam Al-Mahadeen, Sarah Schulman, and Tagreed Awoda. To Katharine Halls and Sarah Schulman, we deeply appreciate you taking the time at the very last minute to look at the essays we sent you and to give us your critical feedback. We look forward to more collaborations on future issues with everyone involved in the peer review process.

A big shout-out to AltCity, for hosting our launch panel “Rethinking Feminist Research in the MENA,” and to all those who showed up in support.

A very special thank you to our brilliant tech expert, Khalil Antoun and our fantastic designer, Toni Bou Serhal.

We truly appreciate the solidarity of Monica Basbous, who trusted us with her amazing illustrations. Her artwork is featured on the cover and homepage of this issue.

Finally, we wish to thank Heinrich Böll Stiftung for their financial backing, especially Noor Baalbaki and the wonderful people at their Middle East Office in Beirut.

We have not mentioned so many friends and supporters behind the scenes who encouraged us, shared our page and news, and showed us the love. It is not possible to name you all here, but your emails and conversations mean so much to us.
