Acknowledgments

This issue is the culmination of a joint effort between Kohl and CTDC. We met over a shared passion to challenge the hegemony of knowledge produced in western and academic institutions and moved forth to explore alternative methodologies together. We hence hosted a conference on “Decolonizing Knowledge around Gender and Sexuality.” This issue comes to reflect some of the contributions of scholars and activists present at the conference, but also others whose presence was impeded by borders. It is a tribute to transnational collaborations seeking feminist complicity with one another.

We would like to start by thanking CTDC, particularly Nour Abu Assab and Nof Nasser-Eddin, as well as Gráinne Charlton who have embarked on this journey with us and made the conference possible.

We would like to thank Kohl’s advisory board, Arianne Shahvisi, Ebtihal Mahadeen, Elisabeth Armstrong, Khouloud Mahdhaoui, Maie Panaga, Nadjé Al-Ali, Rola Yasmine, and Sawsan Abuldrahim, who continue to strengthen our vision and challenge it through their commitment to feminist knowledge production.

We are indebted to the tireless work of our team of translators, Bernadette Daou, Hiba Abbani, and Sarah Kaddoura, who made the Arabic version of Kohl possible and generously accommodated our tight deadlines.

Our immense gratitude goes to our writers, who humble us with their generosity and commitment to feminist causes. Thank you Akanksha Mehta, Gráinne Charlton, Naveen Minai, Nour Abu-Assab, Nof Nasser-Eddin, Sabiha Allouche, Sara Shroff, Shama Dossa, and Talah Hassan for trusting us with your writings, and to Ward Zaraa for his artwork illustrating this issue.

For the issue on alternative methodologies, our review process has also been alternative and relied mostly on panel discussions of work presented at the conference as means of public conversation. However, we still required the insights of Arianne Shahvisi and Sophie Chamas who provided us with a thoughtful reading of one article whose authors’ were unable to attend the conference.

We cannot thank Layal Khatib, our web developer enough. Her work has been of detrimental to our digital autonomy.

We would like to thank Heinrich Böll Stiftung and their Middle East Office in Beirut for their continuous financial support since Kohl’s beginnings. We are grateful for the support of Mama Cash, Astraea Lesbian Foundation for Justice, and Global Fund for Women.

The Kohl Team,
Ghiwa Sayegh and Roula Seghaier
